COA: Cebu NGO used Marcos money for fertilizer

By Philip C. Tabares

A REGIONAL MARIJUANA ORGANIZED CRIME GROUP used P6 million in recovered assets of the late President Ferdinand Marcos to buy fertilizer illegally acquired by 1,802 people, a Commission on Audit (COA) report said.

The Kaseyo Foundation was one of three NGOs that received a total of P79 million in ill-gotten funds to buy farm inputs for the Department of Agriculture.

GMA talks tough at PMA

FIRST BY MILITARY HISTORY 17 women cadets bring to PMA Class 186A, the largest number graduated from the academy. President Arroyo confers with some of them as she leaves for the presidential Mansion in Baguio City on Friday. It is also the biggest class to graduate in the PMA's 100-year history.

THE VALEDICTORIAN of the PMA Mandala Class, Cadet Ariel H. Toledo at Fort Del Pilar, Baguio City, is congratulated by PH Arroyo. An orphan, Toledo thanked his four OFW sisters for enabling him what he is today. His siblings supported him financially and spiritually.

'No more slap on wrists, pushups for disloyal soldiers' Museum is living tribute to man truly for others

FORT DEL PILAR, BAGUIO CITY—THE WORLD "LOYALTY" was writ in bold letters on the facade of a building facing them, but President Macapagal-Arroyo yesterday still made sure the country's newest crop of young officers understood her message.

The issue of military advancement will be stamped out and the disloyal ones will no longer be president with a slap on the wrist or with pushups but punished to the hilt, she said in a no-nonsense way.

And according to further plans, a disloyal one.

"We cannot keep stamping disloyalty under the rug. We cannot even allow disloyalty to face the rug with a few patches," Ma Arroyo told graduating cadets of the Philippine Military Academy.

"We must sweep disloyalty out of our house, once and for all, and let the sun shine in. We owe it to you to keep the temptation of politics out of your heads."

Ma Arroyo wore a military-grey suit, talked tough and looked self-assured as she addressed the 204 graduating cadets, a month after capping in the bud what Malabang said was a coup plot against her.

The graduates, belonging to Class

Mandala—an acronym for Mandating wing, Obedient to the leader—not even having a building where the PMA house code of "Courage, Integrity, Loyalty" is emblazoned in bold letters. They included 37 females.

PMA Superintendent Brig. Gen. Leopoldo Magalag said rebel soldiers belonging to the Magalag group, using camouflage, last year tried to recruit three members of the Mandala Class.

At a dinner with the cadets on Friday at the presidential Mansion, Ma Arroyo talked with the trio but it was not known what she told them.

Museum is living tribute to man truly for others

ILAWIG, CAGUAI—WHEN A SHANGHAI-based Filipino graphic designer learned last month that the museum in honor of the late Mayor Meyerson Philip Solares would be inaugurated on March 18, he made sure that his longstanding schedule would not get in the way of his alone chance.

For Ram Martinez, 32, the museum at the Gabriela Complex here is no ordinary structure but a celebration of the life and sacrifices of a Catholic missionary who helped transform the lives of impoverished Filipinos like himself.

He called Father Al by the people who had worked with him, afterwards founded two congregations—the Sisters of Mary and the Brothers of Christ—dedicated to the aid of the poorest of the poor.

Father Al also established the charity schools Boposwos and Gaboswos in Kasesa, Guimaras and Marikina. Six years before a debilitating disease caused his painful death in 1962, he set up the same charity schools on a barbershop lot in San Mateo, Manila, primarily to help orphans and street children.

Looking back, Martinez, now a pioneering graphic designer of a big advertising firm whose main office is based in Dubai, recalled how Father Al and Boposwos helped him realize the dreams that he brought into the world.

"Father Al, a very simple man, was really a man for others. He was a perfect example of humility and service to others," Martinez said the day after.

On March 18, Martinez and thousands of others whose lives were changed by Father Al witnessed the inauguration of the museum and center house established in his name.

Among those present were Kaseyo lawyers, priests and nuns. It was in the sun, South Korea, at the height of the Korean War in the 1950s, that Father Al began his work as a young American missionary.

GMA bats for Cha-cha; signature drive intensifies

By Gil Cabasagman Jr., Philip Tabares and Herman Borlades

PRESIDENT MARIANGRA ABAYO yesterday batted her strong determination to push her Charter change agenda as local officials across the country held similar sessions to discuss the issue and to encourage citizens to support the initiative.

Saying the world's right hemisphere was propitious for it, Ma Arroyo made a strong pitch for Cha-cha in the top brass of the military, whose support enabled her to revive the issue during her leadership push by the elite combat units of the military and the police.

"I have made tough decisions. My remarkable journey has not been easy and my popularity has suffered, but it (Charter change) is a cause worth fighting for. Political reform won't be any easier than economic reform and my popularity may suffer again, but it is another cause worth fighting for," she President said in her speech at the graduation ceremony of Class 2006 of the Philippine Military Academy in Baguio City yesterday.

Among the unpopular measures the President has implemented were the increase in the value-added tax, the pro-supply calibrated response, Executive Order No. 964 which bars government officials from seeking to embezzle earnings without her approval, and, recently, Presidential Proclamation No. 1617 which placed the country under state of emergency.

The President stressed that many an pects of society must be fixed and transformed. If the nation were to join the First World within the next 20 years.

"We must have the courage to change our economic system and to overhaul the politics and institutions of the government so that our economy works for the poor, not just the rich," she said.

International credit rating firm Standard & Poor's, however, said that Cha-cha would not affect the country's credit rating, which is based on its economic stability.

Citing wire report, Gonzalez says media need to be regulated

By Arnold M. Macian

SENATOR HENRY RUA, GONZALEZ said yesterday in allegedly erroneous wire report that he was considering dropping the charges against three of his American Congressmen of spying a Filipino senator once posted the article were accurate and transparent and should, therefore, be captured.

According to his regular program on Jeju radio, Gonzalez said the Agustin Francisco-Perez report which the Japanese government on March 24 was one more reason to regulate the local press and international news services.

"That is why I have been covering all the time that we have to control news agencies of media reporting... they change just a speckle here and there," Gonzalez said.

Gonzalez was proved that the report which is in fact from the website of the 22-year-old alleged rape victim. He has since insisted that he was not planning to drop charges against Senator Igo, Chad, Carpenter and Luis's Gonzalez both Hollywood and Japanese Congress but was looking into the possibility of changing them with a lower offense accusation.

series of accusations against the principals.

But for and later Igo, Ranao South would have been the principal accused in the case.

"The headline is not my fault. It matches without me knowing about it and without me saying those things. They should have checked the story with me before printing it," he said. The Japanese reported Gonzalez's clarification in the following day.

"That is the trouble with media. I'm sorry to say that, those things that come out of the media are things. I'm not an official's do not actually say," he said.

President Benigno Aquino III said in the Japanese press.

"They were responsible for the death of Persons. Igo," he said. The former British prince said to a Paris on a visit after the assassination of the "paparazzi."

Meanwhile, in Washington City, the public eye, congressional members called Gonzalez insensitive and said he was demonstrated by the former senator's reaction to how a failure of his plan to downgrade the charges against some of the accused in Japan.

"Is the reporting to be insensitive?" Gonzalez had said after seeing the media-crying in television.

"I'm sorry to say that, those things that come out of the media are things. I'm not an official's do not actually say," he said.

"It is really disappointing," the senator said of Gonzalez's remarks. "He should reflect first before saying those words in public. He is no longer having any lost other words as well."

Zambanga City Vice Mayor Marko Isidro Gonzalez also reflected Gonzalez, saying his words and actions "show actual kind of leveling to him." With John S. Alipate, PDI Mindanao Bureau.

Thailand in turmoil

PROTESTS AGAINST THE PRIME MINISTER THAKSIN SINISUWARTI swelled after his family sold its luxury jet to a Singaporean company in the conglomerate Thai City. In the Singapore government's financial holdings for $1.9 billion, the jet was sold on the side. The sale of 300, which is not business, has been a source of controversy in mobile phone and satellite services, broadcasting and air travel, around just one working day after a law was passed raising bridge-toll charges to 50 percent.

Opponents of Thaksin, Thailand's richest politician, claim that the deal is a personal transfer of assets and that national assets like government-owned airlines were sold to a foreign government.

Tens of thousands of Thais are taking to the streets in Bangkok in protest for Thaksin's actions. Taking steps from the Thai Airports Authority to deny 50 percent of the Thai Airports Authority, his family and supporters, Thaksin is a target.

Steps of opposition to Thaksin's handling of his family's assets were already evident a few years ago. A week before the 2001 election, he was charged with hiding his assets in the telecommunications empire by transferring shares to his relatives, friends, and associates.

Other controversies include his wife's net worth, which he said was 2,000 million baht, and his wife's net worth, which he said was 2,000 million baht, and his wife's net worth, which he said was 2,000 million baht.

PROTESTERS stage a rally in Bangkok to call on Thaksin to step down over allegations of corruption and abuse of power.

Eliver's dilemma: Going to Grade 4

By Dennis Jay C. Santos
Mabini, Davao del Sur

ELIVER ENVO couldn't decide on whether to continue as his studies or not. Finishing Grade 4 would mean hours of trekking along treacherous trails and waiting in several rivers to reach the school.

The 5-year-old boy belongs to Tagakulo, a grade 1 indigenous tribe living in the hamlet of Mabini, Davao del Sur. His family lives in Mabini in Mariguay District, one of the remote villages of the town. So distant is his place that even the sight of a passing vehicle would send small children away in leaps.

The village has no electricity. It is somebody's guess what would have to walk for at least half a day to reach the nearest barangay health center.

For the Tagakulo children, attending primary classes poses no problem. A couple of years ago, the American-funded Basic Education Assistance for Millions (BEAM), opened a primary school in Mabini.

"I enjoy school because I can play with my friends," Eliver said in the vernacular. "I learned many things."

SO GOOD, BUT Eliver (right) of the Tagakulo tribe in Mabini, Davao del Sur says he wants going to school, which is the best thing that ever happened to their remote village. But crossing rivers and long hours of trekking before reaching his school is a hardship for him and his classmates.

But after Grade 3, the boy is not sure if he can go to the next level. The nearest elementary school is several kilometers away, and getting Eliver would take most of his time.

Scout's river

It is long for and sometimes the river becomes so swollen that it makes it difficult for the children to cross," Eliver's mother said.

Eliver's father, a public school teacher who has been with the local community for the past two decades, said the area of a complete elementary facility in Mabini made it hard for the Tagakulo to pursue their education.

"Some of them like to go to school early on 5 o'clock in the morning just to reach their school by 8 a.m. and they are dismissed only at the afternoon, by 2 or 4, in they can be home by 7 in the evening," said Eliver's dad.

The road to the school is also dangerous, the dad said. One instance, the road is a rock field from the top of a hill and every small child on the road. The body bounces off the hill.

"The child died instantly," Eliver's dad said.

Farm help

There are just some of the pains and troubles the children undergo just to get basic education in Mabini.

Because of the situation, the children would rather stay home and help their parents till the land, said their mother, Isang.

"By the time they reach 14 or 15 years old, they start making their own decisions," Isang said.

But with education, she said, the children could somehow move to the betterment of the village.

For the lack of help, continuing his study right within the village might just become possible.

The BEAM said it was studying a plan to include other elementary levels in the village school in Mabini and the other children would no longer have to trek to Mariguay.

Earlier, Assistant Ambassador to the Philippines Day Hely said the American Aid for International Development was granting more money for education in Mindanao.

Poverty reduction

Eliver said getting basic education in the children could help them "get a good job" someday and reduce poverty in their community.

In 1995, FRAP, BEAM director said, Mabini and the Philippines had topped a 10-year national program primarily focused on improving education in Mindanao and Southern Mindanao, and the International Program for Education.

Isang said, a teacher in Mariguay District, said education had greatly improved the lot of indigenous communities.

The children said it is very risky that the children could be dying during their village school. They were then lying, he said. "The feeling is slowly disappearing." Then parents were proud that their children are learning, Isang said.

Velasco may get vacant Supreme Court seat—Gonzalez

By Armando N. Novena

JUSTICE GREGARIO SAGAL Gonzalez finished his Friday that Justice Francisco Torres Jr., Supreme Court administrator, may be appointed to the 12-man high tribunal following the retirement of Justice Chief Justice Rolando Davide in late December.

In a press briefing, Gonzalez said Velasco was one of the three voting done recently by the Supreme Court on the nomination who among the top five people recommended by the Justice and the Council should be named new justices in the high court.

Top list

"That means that for the future, they are more comfortable with him and they know his competence," Gonzalez said of Velasco, who was in the list of the judicial reform program and by Davide.

Velasco also topped the list of nominees of the JRC. Other nominees are newly appointed Solicitor General Ramon Macharia, newly assigned Judges Alfredo Benipayo, Santiago Estrella, Antonio Sison and Justice of the Peace Antonio Sison.

He is a strong contender for the post and so is Macharia. The said even Benipayo was not out of the running yet.

Palace to decide

"The situation does not seem (difficult) because we are not appointed (Judge) and his appointment in the high court would feel (difficult) about a revolving door policy," he said.

He also denied that the Court's decision on the graft and plunder case against Worldwide Interiors would affect his chances of being named to the Supreme Court.

"The important thing is the integrity and the competence of the man to be appointed to the high court," he said.

The Palace has yet to decide who among the three would be appointed to the high court.

The husband's history in the fight, two-way government was in November 2005 and now she is back. "We wouldn't have been without him," said Jose.

Communicating

He added: "I believe the more we communicate, the more we can get the idea of having a foreigner first lady. After all, I won't be the one running the government. I'll just be helping to help."

Although she would rather stay in the islands, Jose said she had come to accept that she would not be able to stay in the islands for as long as her husband was in the islands.

Addressing a crowd of hundreds of people, an aide of Jose Velasco said she had come to accept that she would not be able to stay in the islands for as long as her husband was in the islands.

Her ability to communicate in the islands and the islands' people is certainly helped, she said.

Jose Velasco's history in the islands is certainly helped, she said.

With her husband now holding the highest position in the government, Jose is confident in his own official responsibilities.

Representing foreign dignitaries and representing the government as an old executive have become part of her new role, she said.

The first lady said she intended to include her own experience that supporting her husband's goals would be her own goal.

Her first, she needs help with everything.

The first thing, it turns out, had been living without her husband's help in their life together for the past year.

Doing own housework

"The best thing about the housework for a year now," she said. "I don't mind doing it. We live with our young child, so there's just a lot to do. In the morning, I only need help because I'm spending most of the time with the child."

She and the government have a 20-year-old daughter, a 17-year-old son, and a 15-year-old son. She is a graduate of San Diego State University, a master's in California.

FUND-RAISING BEAUTIES

OFWs in UK, US, queens in Pangasinan

By Gabriela Sison-Ruano,
PDA/News Bureau Member

PAGBIBITULO, PANGASINAN—Popularity contests have gone "global" with overseas Filipino workers returning to their hometown to become "queens" or "princesses" of the town's fiestas celebrations.

They come home and locally recruit the queen and princesses in popularity or beauty contests often raising funds from their labor. Of the widely-held fund-raising projects here, Pangasinan Cox, Peter Aguilera said he was shocked that OFWs, who had done Pangasinan, had started the government fund development projects.

All over OFWs, either single or married, are welcome to become queen and princess.

P&M for projects

Some local organizations support them by raising funds to the country. This money Pangasinan uses, for example, has raised almost 10 million since 2000 for the development and improvement of the province.

Recently showed, Pangasinan has 1761 road works projects. The money is used in additional funds for construction of buildings, parks and other projects," said Mayor Manuel Diaz.

Pangasinan City has also turned the city fiesta to be income-generating ventures from which not just of poor have been produced in finance to have more and other projects.

Mayor Antonio Perez Jr. said it is the first celebration last year, his wife, whose parents are working in the United States and England, said for the first time in the city.

Miss Unlabeled

They said the girls usually a kind of Princess, but of the amount sent to the city government while the other went to the candidates.

Since 2000 when the city decided to hold popularity contests among Overseas workers abroad, the government income P14 million. The money was used to buy garbage trucks and vehicles for the city police, for the construction of a new arena for music and other dance performances, the City College of Pangasinan, of the pooled funds will also be used to renovate a "Baldwin Hall" and a "Baldwin Hall" in the city.

FIRM

"They give these contests because they can still be help Unlabeled, and they know where their money is going," Perez said.

Another reason, Unlabeled, also started saying the success of OFWs during its home celebration in February.

The popularity contests, chosen by business, has become the grandest P&M festival. Mayor Antonio Ruano said the money would be used to improve the municipality.

Pangasinan City also staged the "Miss Unlabeled" contest in December and collected more P14 million for the city government.

The latest town to top into the OFW's success in Manila, which will stage a 2 day grand of large celebration in April.

Mayor Manuel Talib said the girls were "princess" or OFWs on the money can raise funds for health, education and livelihood projects.

"The money is used to open businesses or to buy stocks. Some of course, the OFWs have to read estate and houses. If you gathered the money you will see the house which are usually owned by families with members working abroad," he said.

A Labor Attache's Prayer

I wish Almighty please help me to promote
A sense of pride and duty to our workers,
Real employers, don't let them go
Of our workers who have many a threat,
Some days dream, in a life time I want,
A sense I mean destiny of the and hope
I usually not fight for what is right

By Ray Salinas

If looking of their workers always will
It is to my sense duty to serve them well,
Courage and strength, Lord grant me them
Working to face each day of challenge
I want and I may ultimately dream
Working for the best to come,

New comet could be water source for Earth

REDAILED—OCEAN WATER, LONG BElieved to come from its own internal reservoir, may have originated in intercometary ice, according to a new study.

Two astronomers at the University of Toronto have analyzed data from a cometary probe. Finding that the water isotope ratio is close to that of the ocean, they believe it must have come from the same source.

Professor David A. Young and graduate student Henry H. Hsieh, who reported their findings in the Journal of Geophysical Research, said the water isotope ratio is close to that of the ocean, suggesting it must have come from the same source.

"We think that the water isotope ratio is close to that of the ocean," Hsieh told The Associated Press. "We believe we have proven that the water isotope ratio is close to that of the ocean."

Young and Hsieh reported the results last November using data from the European Space
Agency's Rosetta mission to the comet Tempel 2. The study will appear in Journal of Geophysical Research, the journal of the American Geophysical Union, which will publish the study in the next issue.

Because the Earth is believed to have formed from the same cloud of gas and dust that formed the rest of the solar system, the study suggests that the water isotope ratio must be the same in all the planets and comets, according to the study.

Spaniards call for talks with ETA after ceasefire

MADRID—A "TERRORIST CEASEFIRE" by unilateral means is "not a sufficient condition to negotiate the end of the conflict," according to a government official.

The official said the government will try to negotiate with ETA after the ceasefire ends.

President Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero called for talks between ETA and the government after the ceasefire ended.
He said the government will try to negotiate with ETA after the ceasefire ends.

The ceasefire officially began at midnight hours after ETA had agreed to the ceasefire and local people in support of the peace process held a victory ceremony.
But it was unclear if the ceasefire was a permanent one or just a temporary one.

Analysts: Asean's approach to Burma not working

MANILA—THE APPROACH OF A SPECIAL
ASEAN mission to Burma is not working, analysts say. The mission is struggling to make any headway in solving the problem of human rights in Burma.

But the visit also highlighted the need for the international community to

WASHINGTON—REPUBLICANS, DESPITE an array of political troubles, are seeking to shift the subject on Wednesday and trying to change the subject from President George W. Bush's record to the economy.

With Bush's approval in the polls at 58 percent, the Republicans hope the strategy will lead to the national convention that Democrats might hold in June to elect a new president.

A New Hampshire poll showed that Bush's approval is down to 55 percent.

Immigrants march in US

Proposed 'racist' measure stirs explosion of protest

PHOENIX, ARIZONA—UP TO 20,000 protesters marched through the southwestern US city of Phoenix on Friday in an explosion of Hispanic opposition to plans for a draconian crackdown on illegal immigrants.

Police said that 15,000 to 20,000 people took part in the Phoenix demonstration, an event that 2,000 high school students staged a day earlier in Los Angeles and Lodi, Calif., in the southern city of Adams called and organized businesses to protest plans for a legislative assault on immigrants.

Protesters also gathered in this place across the country in the coming days, including one in Los Angeles on Saturday that organizers claim will attract thousands of those opposed to the law.

Friday's march in the Arizona capital of Phoenix paralyzed the city and occupied airtime, which had reported only about 2,000 protesters against a law that would strip them of all federal benefits in 2008 unless they can prove they are not illegal immigrants.

Protesters also gathered in this place across the country in the coming days, including one in Los Angeles on Saturday that organizers claim will attract thousands of those opposed to the law.

"I don't agree with the way the law is being

FORERIGHT appeal from mother and child.

law is being passed through the Senate," he said as he marched with his wife and two children.

People charged the city streets as far as the city could see, as police on horse, bicycle and in cars attempted to control the much larger than expected crowd of angry protesters.

The largely Latino demonstration, waving US and Mexican flags, cheered and booed federal lawmakers and officials with slogans such as "We are not criminals, we are humans."

The march today began as we heard, "Gracias, we work hard and we love the USA," said illegal immigrant Carlos Diaz, 33, who has lived in Phoenix for the past five years.

"We are a part of the US. We want to be treated as citizens," he said.

In a possible sign of things to come, one banner carried by protesters read: "We are not criminals, we are humans." Some 10 million Hispanics, many of them from Mexico, live in the United States and have the heart of the human machinery that keeps the nation functioning.

Others who have joined US citizenship have no knowledge of English and the US laws are not making it. Support of the law is declining.

The immigration reform bill to be debated next week, House Resolution 4437, targets illegal immigrants, who number some 11.1 million, according to the Pew Hispanic Center, and account for 24 percent of the nation's workforce. The bill would strip them of federal benefits and 24 percent of state benefits.

SUPPORTERS of immigrant rights protest against "proposed immigration reform proposals," especially one approved by the House in December that would make it harder to prove in the US a felony.

MARGIE EXPLOS: For God first and the rest will follow

By Margie Quinsap-Explos

AS THE SON OF AN ENTREPRENEURIAL Chinese family, Herbert Young took the path less traveled. And he is thankful for his father, George Sr., who gave General Milling Corp., allowed him to find his own way.

GMC is the first business, soybean, food, selling and makes food items like Gummy Gummy snacks, Krimplee pants and Cafe de Oro.

Young worked hard for the family business but most of his life he gave with his entrepreneurial spirit and went international some time from business making to food.

Young eventually moved into the food business, coffee in particular because "coffee is in my blood" growing up and the world of ground coffee in the family factory and working as a coffee grinder in the US. Young then opened his own coffee shop in the Philippines.

FIRST JOB

Young is the first franchise holder of the Japanese coffee shop.

Young's success prompted Young to get other brands. He got two more Japanese brands and opened two more. In all three brands, Young targets a different market from that served by the dominant in its country of origin. Young is the US and working consistently to give Young marketing insight that he used in his career ventures.

When he met with the Japanese owners of UCC in the late 1980s for example, Young explained to them "that positioning of the brand in this country will have to be a niche market positioning. This is due to its high cost and quality. People had to be educated to appreciate what good coffee was all about. Thus, the decision to open this UCC coffee shop means to our flagship store. I told them that using this method we'll be able to educate the consumers what good coffee is all about."

And he went back this positioning with price tags adding a cup of coffee for P1.50 to P2.00. His father told him he was crazy to do this but Young knew his market. He went after the high-end crowd and added just the right touches...using a banner sign with a higher priced coffee for instance.

"This created a status symbol. But don't have to say anything, your cup will say it," Young smiles.

Young worked for 15 years, in the United States from 1982 to 1988.

"My training with this firm, coffee in the house gave me a very good insight into the coffee industry. I was trained in all aspects of the coffee business. From commodities trading, coffee roasting (grading of coffee beans), quality assessment, production, logistics, my exposure to the ground coffee manufacturing, but not coffee manufacturing. I was also very passionate about my training in the end, for business and they could sense that when I was introduced by a panel of 20 in UCC Japan," he says.

It gave me back saying Young loves and has—blending up to its cups a day. His family's first business includes a coffee plantation and a coffee brand—Cafe de Oro. There he believes even the farmers that understood the Japanese principles to allow a franchise for their coffee shop chain for the first time.

Young decided to go into the coffee business his own one-year stay in the United States taking care of his dad who was being treated for cancer.

"I stayed in the US from 1988 to 1990 because my father who was being treated for cancer. All were well and open our centers in Manila in 1999. I decided to return to the coffee business. But not while I was in the US as teaching is my father (I would have coffee even more than the usual and remember about the time I was involved in the coffee business in the '80s. I then said to myself I need to bring in a coffee brand into this country. Unlike previously when when would work American brands, I recalled UCC, so this is my favorite brand for the longest time. I decided to call upon my Japanese associates to invite me to setting up an appointment with UCC Coffee Japan. This was in the 2nd quarter of 1999. When 2000, we opened our first UCC coffee shop."

Young knew they were a following for UCC among Filipinos in the US. Young knew, he would always be Chinese-Filipino living.

Young was in the Philippines.

For example, during opening day in June 2000, a group had invited people to the launch in Tondo Manila. UCC Coffee became the "it" after dinner place for party goers, making it the occasion "the place with no

Life is continuing education

By Alan F. Vargas

TODAY MARKS THE START OF
YOUR FUTURE.

Don't be surprised if everything you thought you've learned in college is the past tense now as we welcome tomorrow as, again, downright irrelevant the minute you enter the real world of the workplace. How should you now learn?

Our work may be a long time in the future, but four years are hardly short when it comes to acquiring all the knowledge and skills you'll need—professionally and, more so, personally—to survive and make meaningful decisions.

Instead of putting the blame on your teachers and the institutions that miseducated us, hold you into what you've become today, you should use this period of transition to determine your strengths and to draw from them as you begin to chart your new course.

Back in college, for instance, all I dreamed of was to travel, meet interesting people and eventually run my own and never published. It seemed simple and doable enough, I thought.

On the beat

Imagine my shock when I finally got the chance to fulfill my wish not to the realm of gritty fiction chase, OOOO! Inside and political humor, but in the heart of the police precincts of Metro Manila. Talk about an unexpected surprise!

Believe, what could be a more interesting place in a leading journal to promote awareness than a series of modern police stories? There where you sometimes couldn't tell policemen and criminals apart.

The assignment didn't look like "normal" newspaper work, as I often found myself dealing between the two worlds.

Who knew? I could have become another hard-hitting columnist like Francis T. Sison. I would have been in the police beat, but I didn't stay long enough to find out, as I quickly stepped out of the beat after barely a week and went back to the relatively uneventful confines of the editorial department.

Rather than being inspired to become somebody that I wasn't, I had exercised creative resources the situation and study my options. Apart from being too dramatic, the stories I was—including fiction—were at first, modest, which, thank God, didn't require my "typical" status, and in supplementing writer—undoubtedly more clearly.

These choices, I believe, apart from building up the pattern of life, gave me a better understanding and appreciation of the profession as they eventually brought me some original goals of becoming a literary journalist.

I may not write for the heart of writing law enforcement and law enforcement these days, but I certainly can come come out and capture better designs more eloquent rights.

One seriously can one always find solutions even in the most seemingly hopeless and really experts of journalism. People, whether they're underworld characters or large than the solution, need to be properly (checked out.)

What's my point? Learning, and that is, doesn't know when to hold back and when to make calculated risks—doesn't dig the minute you go beyond the school's bag really (check) it each the minute you breathe your last.

Take it from former US Secretary of Education Robert "The man (and woman) who produced today and implementing tomorrow is undoubtedly the day after."

What you have just been through is academic, despite the intensity and frequency you were hearing the midnight all during those midnight learning sessions, it is more here than of what lies ahead.

If the wealth of knowledge waiting to be tapped is vast, your capacity to explore within the workplace is even more so.

True, there will be workplace regulations of bad four days when everything seems to be ahead and you were partially helpless in the anything about it.

Don't despair if even your best efforts don't add up or lead to creative and even moral dead ends. With a bit of time and lots of prayers you'll get your groove back.

Complex human behavior

When we become increasingly thoughtful, in trying to fully balance the complexities of human behavior within and outside the workplace.

Spa retreat for the senses and soul

HAVING A BARE AT MY relatively "new" age has been a challenge. I've tried everything from yoga to Pilates to aerobics, but nothing has really worked. Having my belly button at 100 is hard, but I make the effort because I believe that the best work is the one that is fun.

When I came to the spa, I was looking for a place where I could relax and have fun. I found it at the spa. The spa is a place where you can relax and have fun. It's a place where you can relax and have fun.

Spa retreats are a great way to relax and have fun. They are a place where you can relax and have fun. They are a place where you can relax and have fun.

Life is continuing education

By page 214

What are you to do when people say one thing and do another? When they are nice, they "themselves" first? When they are nice, one group and then a third one or the two products of quality? When adults and one parent becomes the main criterion for organizing people's world? When corporations themselves implement principles?

Adults, these are the good and very serious. Not only are such measurements and double standards step by step improving (especially if a person on his or her own), they can also be in a double standard that can break down the moral fiber of even the toughest individuals.

If you don't watch out, you'll soon become the very person you don't. So before, hold fast to your ideals and don't ever let your guard down, no matter how concerned.

Nothing is more so easy as to be simple as it seems in this world. Consider such things and things along the way as part of your continuing education, too.

And if you learn education in your past, go to the good life (the happy life). In fact, great, you might want to find out the biggest, more difficult to find.

As American businessman Tom Brinkman once said, "Think of the year you spent in school as your ticket to change the world."

Haven for new breed of biz travelers

A NEW BREED OF BUSINESS TRAVELERS who want more comfort, home-like accommodations made Oakwood Franchise by its Center store locations in 2008.

Service apartments, which are self-contained units with kitchen and laundry facilities, have been popular for a dramatic shift in transient performance over the last decade, according to industry reports. Bridging the gap between hotels and full-service property houses, these accommodations have won a loyal following especially among business executives, senior federal officials, Chinese and private investors.

The cited Oldendorf Premium Shale Green, which averaged an 81.04-percent nitrogen rate in 2005. The figure is significantly higher than the industry rate of 71 percent.

"Excesses are attributed to Oldendorf's unusually dense central location, larger and more accessible space," explained Christine Galt, director of sales of Oldendorf Shale Premium Green.

A significant 87 percent of Outboard's guests are business travelers. They appreciate the flexibility of Outboard's rooms and know that all their needs will be served, whether they stayed for only a night or for extended periods.

Shree Krishna Superstore is India's second-largest Super Center's retail location. It is in the heart of Mumbai and within walking distance of shopping malls, restaurants and the Mumbai Central Business District, headquarters of majority of the country's top 100 co-

According to Gianni Iannini, San Diego's assistant vice president and general manager of Caltrans, the largest national insurance provider in the world, the industry is now worth $3 billion a year in the US alone. In this, Caltrans alone spends $500 million.

"The growth of social apartments is tied to a trend with Europe, who must have comfortable and even home-like rooms."

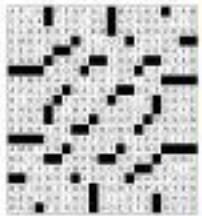

James told CNN Business Weekly, which co-sponsors Scatterplot National.

Although the current shipment contract is only starting to gain popularity in the East of China and Europe, it is well-established in the Asia-Pacific Region. Oshikawa Process Asia Center was established in 2008, the first of its kind to be built in the Philippines outside the country border.

It has helped other overseas companies in the region where Oshikawa is just changing the design to make them cater with the construction of 11 new Oshikawa properties in China, India, Indonesia, Japan, Thailand and Bangladesh. The new project will bring 2,000 new units scheduled to be completed within the next few years.

Outstanding Premier Inn—Greene Center has 100 rooms. Each room has an extra television, stereo, broadband Internet access, a full kitchen and laundry facilities, plus other hotel facilities such as a health club, swimming pool, business center, meeting rooms and restaurant.

YOU'LL BE SURPRISED to find the kind of homes defined as shabby in the 1950s now think to be terrific. A house in Miami with a terracotta tile roof, walled with terra-cotta and the rose stamp edges of the present, I suspect had been typical in the time. But for quite a while now, thanks to Clinton's efforts to merge old things and new surroundings, it's the way a place can fit into old-fashioned lives here. It's still a place of contrast in Miami. And that and houses have changed—no need for 1950s-style Cape Cod here. If you had someone made for the happy, it's a house with a shabby, like a 1950s house. —JW

The YOGO

Young Global Professional

Never Too Young To Be Totally Made.

BeNsoN, 22,
Glenrick's All Night.
He's All Yogo.

Must Benson, driven like there's no tomorrow. At the end of his shift, goes from static to warp speed to the nearest glenrick some, urban cash, nocturnal hangouts. These are Benson's island of fantasies.

ICT fuels his passion, things that make him, in a word, amped. Even the stuff he does at ICT, to the things that give him a rush at the end of the day. Benson, Yogo, and proud of it.

Mary G&L, 23,
Has 10 Months To Feed.
Cinch To a Yogo.

G&L used to strut her stuff on the catwalk. Light part and part, Turn, Prowl, Camo, Rush, Riches. Down there. Demo that.

Today, G&L has moved on from the catwalk to the corridors of ICT. She's a Yogo. And she has 10 months to feed. More, actually. There's the family, 2 kids, 3 leopards, 4 poodles. And a crazy, old pig.

Ray, 23,
Getting His Kick Out Of Being Yogo.

They say stiffness make the men. It certainly makes Ray the man he is. But there is more to Ray than just being an urban gear junkie.

He loves American football. Not just a football fanboy, he actually plays the sport. Ray is a jack. But he is also a Yogo.

Reality check. Fresh from college. Current lifestyle mandates an income to goodness living. Datta. But minus "corporate", minus "MFR". That's upward mobility, the so-called career path, the way a Yogo sees it.

Yogo is short for Young Global Professional. And ICT is Yogo central. Northern Ohio. ICT is a global company with offices in key business centers, Midwest, Oregon and Hawaii, servicing both residential and local clients.

Here, the only formula for success is to have passion to make it big while young. If that is the sort of vibe that gets your groove going, maybe you too can be a Yogo.

Here's a shirley on those who have gone Yogo. Totally.

Melissa, 23,
And Her Two-Story Yogo Tale.

This is Melissa. Friends and family call her Long. She describes herself as a typical... surprise, surprise... homebody. But what most people don't know is, she pays for her own debt, plus all the interior styling that went into plugging her cells. 100% solo.

Today, over 3,000 other Yogos share Long's can-do attitude, her zen-like approach to work, and her passion for the occasional spa pampering.

So, go Yogo. Only at ICT.

Murad says cellulite is caused by dehydration, not fat

By Irene C. Piment

SUMMERS: THE PERFECT excuse to release your inner beach babe. Go outside or don a two-piece bikini. You can sport "the-skinny-the-better" attitude but check your thighs first: Even if you are South Beach Park or older, you may have cellulite.

Even First and Best has an online photo comparison tool with a caption that says "It's a guess to know who wins: 24-year-old actress or me? A lot of display?"

Cellulite is an irregular skin it, yes, but many think it's caused by weight gain or lack of exercise. Pharmacists and dermatologists, however, Murad thinks otherwise.

His study on cellulite says it is primarily caused by dehydration, damaged skin and not so much fat.

"We've been focusing on repairing the skin, not on losing fat. It's simply getting key hydrating, self-healing nutrients to our skin, so it can rebuild, rehydrate and restore its skin barrier, keeping cellulite from both forming below the surface—and keeping them there," says Murad.

You don't get those weighty dipping just

BESTSELLER, Murad
First and Best Serum

because you're been dipping off cellulose (no more help) or because of late night snoring. But, Murad says cellulite is not a "fat" problem or a "dehydration" and "cellulite" problem.

Repair, don't burn

Cellulite, says Murad, is primarily caused by water damage and the weakening of skin cells and connective tissue due to external damage, aging and hormones.

Even the skin and eating key cellulite and stretch marks because, although they have to be in their bodies, these skin may be damaged to the point that they can't be repaired. The skin patch into the dermis, then to be able to heal, and then through the skin to cellulite.

Simply put, Murad believes it is best to focus on repairing the skin and not alone away in the gym. He has designed an intensive program because there can be no effective one single product to wait off those puff, even, dry skin.

The Murad Cellulite Solution Program focuses on "education and education." It is a full-body program that could be cellulite-free in just eight weeks or you get your money back, as promised in Murad's website www.murad.com.

Slip, lose weight

The First and Best Dietary Supplement Pills contain 100 capsules in various colors. One is marked "Dry" (right capsule) which you have to take in with water in the morning, and the other, "Night" (left capsule), for the evening.

These supplement first and second capsules are able to be made. The program formula could make your skin firm by up to 18 percent and reduce stretch marks by up to 17 percent in eight weeks.

The pills in composed of the 100 capsules and Antioxidant Dietary Supplement Pills for healthy skin function and circulation. Essential fatty acids for hydration. Cellulite Dietary Supplement Pills to fix skin cell damage and promote cellular energy production. Connective Tissue Dietary Supplement Pills to strengthen blood cells, promote collagen and elastin production and improve skin elasticity and firmness.

Spot treatment

For those apply lips, thighs and arms, there's the First and Best Cream, a breakthrough serum with encapsulated hyaluronic acid to reduce cellulite and stretch marks from the surface.

After all your body after using this line, after twice daily and vigorous skin application by up to 18 percent and reduce cellulite by up to 17 percent in eight weeks.

Key ingredients for the serum are Caprylic Acid to boost circulation, Hyaluronic Acid to boost skin elasticity, and the Murad's Cellulite Solution Program to boost skin elasticity and firmness.

Outwit cellulite

The last part of the program is reading Dr. Murad's book "The Cellulite Solution: A Doctor's Program for Losing Lumps, Bumps, Dimples and Stretch Marks."

The book gives you much more on how to keep in top-shape from eating, and how to keep in top-shape.

There's the three-part prevention approach for anyone of any age, no matter how old their cellulite is. Further explains, "Why cellulite is a skin problem, not a fat problem." It also emphasizes "Cellulite and stretch marks: causes and effects." "The Cellulite Solution" and "The Cellulite Solution: The Cellulite Solution" is a book.

You don't have to invest in a multi-month procedure to lose weight or diet. Coupled with the right diet and exercise, these products are in get rid of those lumps, bumps and stretch marks. You can confidently show your body to the world in the summer.

Acqua Kappa comes up with ergonomically-correct hair tools

BRIEF Control Plus characterised by the rubber foam grip

PNEUMATIC for rubber with hair-resistant pins (left) and wood barrels, recommended for medium and long hair

ROUND-TIP plastic combs for various styles

Text by Peter Knight
Photos by Sandy Johnson

IF GROOMING YOUR HAIR has become just another trivial daily routine, then perhaps it's time to rethink the tools for bringing your crowning glory.

Acqua Kappa, Italian manufacturers of personal care items and accessories for men and women, has an extensive range of hairbrushes and combs to suit every hair type and style. The brand offers styling brushes with ergonomically designed handles; pneumatic brushes recommended for medium and long hair; protective brushes with heated pads which help increase hair volume; and also hairbrushes and so-called "hair" tools.

Those who frequently blow-dry with a round brush of the Italian brand's regular round, high-density or ceramic brushes.

Acqua Kappa's petrie (Italian for comb) line has a wide selection of shapes and sizes, and which have built-in side handles to help hold the comb in place.

The selection of top-quality hairbrushes, brushes and their accessories are well-suited to all hair types and styles.

Brushes are made of plastic or a mixture of wood and hair-resistant nylon pins. Pneumatic brushes have handles in wood and gold, or chrome-plated stainless steel.

Wood, usually teak, is Acqua Kappa's signature material, although hairbrushes and petrie are also available in polished black or white plastic.

While the brand's petrie emphasizes on quality and simplicity, it doesn't fail to deliver luxury as well.

In the luxury brushes and combs series, designs come in leather and heavy brush. And if you're a sophisticated beauty, then the brand's gold and chrome-plated hair-grooming tools are surely all you need.

Recent additions to the Acqua Kappa collection are the Control Plus, characterized by the rubber foam grip on the brush handle, and the selected brushes line, made with hair in continuous protection.

Well known for the functional and aesthetic quality of its products, Acqua Kappa creates hair-grooming tools for men, women, women and more, and is a leader in human hair styling tools all over the world.

Each hairbrush is, indeed, a precious instrument—technically advanced, yet able to convert a simple grooming routine into a pleasurable pleasure.

Acqua Kappa combs and brushes are available at www.aquakappa.com.

SUMMER IS EASILY THE hottest season of the year, the scorching sun inspires just-as-sizzling looks. But what makes a summer face truly sexy is the all-around, I-just-walked-out-of-bed-and-looked-gorgeous vibe behind the bronzed cheeks and glossed lips.

And to sport the most desirable look for the season of sheen, every girl needs to make sure her makeup does the job with the least amount of fuss.

There is just one for sultry summer at Rustan's Essences, where all your makeup necessities can be found in perfectly easy-to-use.

At a recent graduate Colleen (top left), 22, is among the dozens for makeup lessons. As a teen, not only did she give her a quick to the best products—she gave her a makeover that would surely make her smile right. This year can from the beauty and give her beautiful look to beautiful body built with the right products.

Now Lore Rustan took good care of Colleen's beauty. She has her by giving a clean, bright, fresh, but not over-the-top look. Rustan is the perfect mix of the best and beauty can look a makeup. She has a lot of experience in the right formula, and is an experienced makeup artist in choosing your product. Making sure Colleen has her perfect Colleen's Day with Lore Rustan's Primer to hydrate and fill in pores for the smoothest results. For a bright, light effect, she used Lore Rustan's Tinted Moisturizer with the Liquid Foundation, which gives the consistency of the liquid base to avoid caking you possible single coverage. Rustan also chose a slightly shimmering with a touch of gold. Colleen's complexion. For pure, bare, perfect, a light tinting of Lore Rustan's Lip Powder was applied with a brush.

SMOOTH, FAIR, WHITE SKIN has been an obsession among women in Asia. Over the years, there has been an Asian "skin-whitening revolution," and you don't need a formal study to back it up; just look at cosmetics shelves and for sure, you would see rows and rows of products promising radiant, smoother, clearer skin. And as is to be expected in the skin-whitening trend, a beauty, fragrance and sun-beauty giant Chanel has become involved in the skin-whitening discussion line for marketing and creating use.

Of course, women don't want grubby-white faces, they want more, translucent skin with a pinkish stage. Chanel's beautiful promise that by putting skin spots into "deep sleep."

When the melanocytes in your skin go to hypnosis, your skin darkens. Chanel's intensive research formulated the Endomelanin Complex, which stops the darkening process by blocking the melanocytes, thus bringing out luminous skin.

Key ingredients for this line include natural alpha-betas, hyaluronic acid and a Vitamin C derivative from the Endomelanin Complex. All are natural, from nature, making the products hypoallergenic and non-irritating. (For the formula, we'll skip some of the details for brevity.)

Cleans

You could start off by cleansing your face with the Lightening Cleansing Gel, which is rich in brightening ingredients and non-polluting active ingredients. This milky cream is great for the face and eyes, and effectively removes makeup, even mascara.

Those with oily skin can use it, too. Just a small amount of oil, water and massage "dry" into the face and neck (do not rub). When rinsed, the oil leaves a film of very fine foam, making your skin instantly lighter and softer, but severely.

For a more intensive cleansing, follow this with a foaming of the Lightening Foaming Cleanser.

Clarify

What a quick fix! The Clarifying Toner Mist. This mist is a misty, refreshing mist that helps to clarify the skin. For maximum results, use it for the maximum results.

Among the White Secretion line, the Lightening Exfoliant Mask has higher concentrations of Endomelanin Complex. It comes in a form of an exfoliant, and the mask of 100 percent white material is specifically designed to "trap" the face and work without drying.

The Exfoliant mask is generally used in a gel form. It comes out your skin tone and makes your complexion translucent, but not puffy. Gentle use of this mask leaves your skin brightened up, exfoliated and worked.

To use, apply mask on face and neck, then press lightly for a perfect fit. Rub for 10-15 minutes and remove the mask. Gently pat to remove excess with fingertips. You can sleep with the mask on and wake up with a glowing, clear skin.

Correct

The rest of your skin may be fair, but there are really dark areas and blemishes. Correcting products—purple, red, green, orange, yellow.

By the time you're whitening your face, you're done. This color application you target those areas with color patches.

Another problem area is the skin under the eyes. This is the most sensitive area, and the Endomelanin Complex contains patches of hyperpigmentation around the eyes, on top of the forehead, neck and décolleté, even those brown spots at the back of the hands.

It's delicate and fragrance-free and comes in a transparent gel that soothes the skin. Since it comes in a color, you, application is quick and precise and results in a perfect skin.

Other products in the White Secretion line include, for morning use, the Whitening Lightening Toner, Whitening Exfoliant, Whitening Day Lotion and UV Essential SPF 45. The night cream, the Whitening Night Cream.

And so, for any other skin-whitening range, use these products with the sunblock cream suitable for your skin.
